Let's look at some use cases

Website tutorials

For small businesses that don't yet have a website, Farillio has resources available from a company called Inktrap who are a large digital design agency. They provide tools to help companies understand what is needed for an effective website, and how businesses can monitor and track the engagement of visitors to the site.

Dispute help

Dispute help, particularly if you have not had a dispute made against you or your business before, this information can help talk you through processes like mediation and what to expect with the small claims handling court process.

HR guidance

Farillio provides resources that can assist with maternity/paternity policies, disciplinary processes and job descriptions for recruitment
